

“Challenge Youth Conference”

CYC was great. It was different for us because it was our first year. We did not know many people. But we made some friends and we grew together as brothers and sisters in Christ. We laughed and listened to some of the best preachers.

The reason I come to CYC was to be up lifted and grow with my brothers and sisters in Christ and CYC accomplished both of expectations and went past them far more than could be expected.

On the last night, we joined a church group and we sang in the dining area. By the time we were done, we had the whole convention singing and praising God. We were told that two professional musicians had flown in to do a performance on Sunday morning. They stopped and recorded us praising our master so we were just singing but we impacted their life.

CYC impacted my life and I am looking forward to CYC next year and in many years to come. I will have to bring more friends next year. - Ben Rackley

At CYC, we talked about our identity. Our identity is determined by ourselves and what we take the most pride in.

This weekend we really deepened Matthew 6:24. We talked about how we use our identity. We can't let our identity be determined by worldly things like our grades or appearance. We should choose the identity that God chose for us.

We can't have more than one identity. We can't have a secret identity that we keep from people at church.

I'm reminded of the fence scenario where one side of the fence represents right and the other wrong. You can't choose the fence, because wrong owns the fence. You can't have a good identity and a bad identity because you've still got Satan in your life.

CYC was a great experience and I hope more people come next year. - Walker Lusk
