

Christmas for Kids

Caring is a gift you can share.

There are many ways to show people that you care. Giving gifts is just one of them. When you donate to Christmas for Kids what kind of gift are you actually giving. We think the answer might surprise you.

First you give a gift. Some young person will receive a physical present that you gave. That one is obvious. They won't know the gift is from you but maybe it will help create a bond of friendship and trust with the foster parent who picked it out and wrapped it up just for them. Friendship and trust help us feel secure. Because of your generosity that child now has two gifts the physical one and the more important one of the feeling of security.

That foster parent didn't have to go fight the crowds at Walmart to find that gift. It was there at the Children's Advocacy when they came in for the child's appointment. They shopped while waiting there. You gave them the gift of time. We all know how valuable that is during the holidays.

Those are just two examples of how a gift is more than it appears. Our little gifts really add up to be much more. That's a beautiful picture of how the gospel works. God trusts us to share our little bits of love so that all the world can know just how very BIG His complete love is.

Christmas is not far away and our toy drive will be ending soon. Thank you for your generous support for Christmas for Kids.
